Tired Mothers.

- A little elbow leans upon your knee, Your tired knee, that has so much to bear ; A child's dear eyes are looking lovingly
- From underneath a thatch of tangled hair. Perhaps you do not heed the velvet touch Of warm, moist fingers, folding yours so tight;
- You do not prize this blessing over-much, You almost are too tired to pray to-night.
- But it is blessedness ! A year ago
- I did not see it as I do to-day-We are so dull and thankless; and too slow
- To catch the sunshine till it slips away. And now it seems surpassing strange to me,
- That, while I bore the badge of motherhood, I did not kiss more oft, and tenderly,
- The little child that brought me only good. And if, some night when you sit down to rest,
- You miss this elbow from your tired knee; This restless, curling head from off your breast, This lisping tongue that chatters constantly; If from your own the dimpled hands had slipped,
- And ne'er would nestle in your palm again; If the white feet into their grave had tripped, I could not blame you for your heart-ache then.
- I wonder so that mothers ever fret, At little children clinging to their gown ;
- Or that the foot-prints, when the days are wet, Are ever black enough to make them frown.
- If I could find a little muddy foot, Or cap, or jacket on my chamber floor;
- If I could kiss a rosy, restless foot, And hear its patter in my home once more
- If I could mend a broken cart to-day, To-morrow make a kite, to reach the sky-There is no woman in God's world could say
- She was more bilesfully content than I. But sh! the dainty pillow next my own Is never rumpled by a shining head ; My singing hirdling from its nest is flown; The little boy I used to kess is dead !

Stanley and Livingstone.

The following letter from the brother of Dr. Livingstone concerning the genuineness of Stanley's statement was published in the N. Y. Herald of the

LISTOWELL, Aug. 24th, 1872.-F. N. Blake, Esq., United States Consul, Mamuiton, Untario—Dear Sir: Would you kindly oblige me by conveying in your official capacity to Mr. Bennett, proprietor of the N. Y. Herald, and also to Mr. Stanley, the leader of tho " Herald's Livingstone Search Expedition," my warmest congratulation on the successful issue of Having noticed a number of articles in the public press reflecting doubts on the veracity of Mr. Stanley and the Herald, I am glad to be able to say that I place the most implicit confidence in the statement of Mr. Stanley and the Herald.

I can also assure you that Dr. Livingstone holds the American Government and people in the highest estimation, principally on account of the late abolition of slavery in the United States, and I trust that his persistent efforts to check the nefarious traffic in slaves in Africa will be crowned with success. I am, yours respectfully.

John Livingstone.

The Japanese Abroad.

We copy the following from the Panama Star and Herald of August 8:

A volume of Essays entitled "The Japanese in America " written by themselves has just been published and favorably reviewed in the English papers of last mouth. The following severe yet frank remarks about the Americans will apply not only to the United States, but to all great trading countries, that practically consider making money as the great duty of men and nations. About the Yankees the following opinion is enunciated:

"Without sympathy, without frankness and generosity of iceling, despising human nature, they have no more use for their riches than the Peruvians had for theirs before the Spaniards came to rob them. Some men find delight in the fine arts, in philosophy. in science, in the exercise of the benevolent and social affections; but they have no relish for these. They can no more detect beauties in them than a savage can appreciate all the intricate combinations of harmony in music. As to religion, to consent to pay their pew tax; and to be bored by an occasional sermon on Sunday, for appearance' sake; but their real churches are their counting houses, their real bible their ledger, and last of all, their real god is not ALMIGHTY God, but 'the almighty

This from a Japanese who is as sharp a hand at driving a bargain in trade as any one is as curious as the circumstances which led the critic into the country whose morality he takes to task. About the practical working of the Christian Religion, which occupies by its failure so prominent a part of the History of Japan, his opinion is equally unfavorable and suggestive of anything but an importation de novo of Christian missionaries into bis country. The missionaries, he contends, are "the fathers of ignorance and the enemies of free religion:" and he wants the schoolmaster to be the first berald of civilization. This doctrine is one very likely to be generally dissented from among Western nations, but it must be considered so far as the progressive Spanish American Republics are concerned, that the continued efforts now being made by the Governments of all South and Central America to supply schoolmasters to their people deserves every encouragement, and is sure to prove to the end a wiser measure than the paying an army of missionaries to preach to peoples who have not yet learned to read. Another thing to be wondered at and praised is the standing the Japanese have taken with regard to the relations of women to society. The condition and influence of the latter may invariably be taken as the salest exponent of the true degree of civilization at which any nation has arrived. We have five Japanese young ladies brought over to the United States by the Embassy to be submitted to the best system of education for women followed in that country, and thus test at once the claims of the latter to superiority over the stereotyped routine of Japan. Of the American modes of dress and customs, they have adopted a certain amount, but when urged to deck themselves besides with expensive jewellery they gracefully declined, saying that their Government had been very kind in sending them to be educated in America, that a good deal of expense would be incurred, and that they would prefer dressing in the humblest fashion until they returned to their own friends. "How many young lady delegates" says the London News, "from England or America would have replied in a similar fushion to such an offer?"

ANECDOTE OF CHARLES MATHEWS .- We are given to understand that the following anecdote of Charles Mathews the elder has not hitherto been in print in this country. Mathews and Tattersall were very intimate and the great comedian was frequently in the habit of accompanying his friend to Newmarket, where on one occasion, Mathews indulged in his well-known taste for mimicry, at the expense of Tattersall during a sale of blood stock conducted by the latter. "The first lot, gentlemen," said Mr. Tattersall, "is a bay filly by Smolensko," etc. "The first lot, gentlemen," echoed Mr. Mathews, in precisely the same tone of voice, " is a bay filly by Smolensko," etc.

The auctioneer looked somewhat annoyed but proceeded: " What shall we say to begin with?"

" What shall we say to begin with?" replied the echo. Still endeavoring to conceal his vexation, Mr. Tattersall inquiringly called out, "One hundred

" One hundred guineas," echoed Mathews. Hay! Hay! Hay. "Thank you, sir," cried Tattersall, bringing down the hammer; "the filly is yours." THE UNDERSIGNED ARE RE-Mathews was considerably taken aback by this sudden acquisition of "blood stock," and the (12) company enjoyed the joke immensely.-Harper's
